Tracy K. Rockwood, 76, Western Pioneer, Ex-Star Printer, Dies

Tracy Kingman Rockwood, 76, pioneer of the Old West and former compositor for The Star, died Sunday at his home, 1234 Harvard street N.W., after a long illness.

The son of Jerome Edwin Rockwood, the first Baptist preacher to enter Nebraska, he was born on November 8, 1866 in Sioux City, Iowa. During his life he was an Indian fighter, cowboy, railroader, Peoria riverboat, and a "tramp printer."

He joined the 7th Cavalry at Fort Buford, N. Dak., some years after that outfit was reorganized after the original unit was destroyed with Gen. Custer in the battle of the Little Big Horn.

His love for the Army came to life again during the Spanish-American War when he trained and led a group of Arkansas volunteers.

He said his family had fought in every war involving America since the Revolutionary War. His first settled in New Hampshire in 1734.

Over-age when the World War broke out, he nevertheless sought to enlist both in the United States and Canada, but was unsuccessful.

Harbor, Mr. Rockwood immediately sent a telegram to President Roosevelt asking that he be given some war duty. He again was refused because of his age.

He came to Washington in 1932, and soon after took a job as a compositor with The Star. During his stay here, he discovered that the Old Soldiers' Home had been built in the District and remembered that during his time in the Army he had helped pay for the home. So he decided to "see what it was like."

He lived there for six months, but he had to leave because he found that he couldn't answer roll-call at the home and arrive at work on time. He retired from The Star in 1941.

He was a member of the Columbia Typographical Union. His widow, Mrs. Ellen Rockwood, and a granddaughter, Sheila, are survivors.

Burial will be at noon tomorrow in Arlington Cemetery with graveside services. His body will be at Hines funeral home until then.

Rites for Mrs. Mansury To Be Held Tomorrow

Mrs. Mary K. Mansury, 79, who died Sunday at her home of her daughter, Mrs. William J. Hyatt, 3424 Twenty-second street N.E., will be buried tomorrow following a requiem mass at 9 a.m. at St. Francis de Sales Church. Burial will be in St. Mary's Cemetery.

Mrs. Mansury, a native of Toledo, Ohio, came to Washington about 40 years ago when her husband, Frank E. Mansury, who died in 1915, entered the Government service.

A short time after coming to Washington, Mrs. Mansury bought a summer home at North Beach, Md., and was among the pioneers in the establishment of the summer colony there.

Besides her daughter, at whose home she has lived since her husband's death, she is survived by a son, John S. Mansury, and nine grandchildren.

John Knox Arnold Dies; Was FTC Economist

John Knox Arnold, 61, retired economist, died Friday at El Centro, Calif., after a long illness, it was learned here today.

A native of Mount Sterling, Ky., Mr. Arnold was educated at Washington and Lee University, where he took his bachelor of arts degree, and at George Washington University, where he took a masters degree.

He entered the Federal Trade Commission in 1910 and retired in 1938 due to ill health.

Mr. Arnold is survived by his widow, Mrs. Jesse Scott Arnold, and three sons, Lt. Col. John K. Arnold, Jr., of the Army Air Forces; Robert D. Arnold, a student at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology; and Scott Arnold of Washington.

Funeral arrangements will be made later.

Lt. Hancock of WAVES Names Ship for Husband

By the Associated Press. KEARNY, N. J., Aug. 2.—A WAVES officer and veteran of the World War, Lt. Joy Bright Hancock of Lemmon road, Falls Church, Va., who lost two husbands in naval dirigible accidents, christened the destroyer Hancock in honor of her late husband at a double launching at the Federal Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Co. yard yesterday.

Lt. Hancock has the distinction of being the first commissioned officer of the Navy to sponsor a combatant ship. Because of the organization of the WAVES just a year ago, it was possible to assign this honor to an officer, and at the same time preserve the tradition of having women only for ship sponsors.

Lt. Comdr. Lewis Hancock, Jr., was killed September 3, 1925, when the Navy dirigible, Shenandoah, crashed near Caldwell, Ohio.

First ship launched yesterday was the destroyer, named for the late Secretary of the Navy, William H. Hunt, who served under Presidents Garfield and Arthur in 1881. Sponsor of the ship was Mrs. Hancock's daughter, Mrs. Henry Kent Hewitt, Newport, R. I., wife of Vice Admiral Hewitt, commander of United States naval forces in North Africa waters and chief of the 3,000 vessels which took part in the invasion of Sicily.

Archbishop Spellman Hopes Italy Yields To Cut War Toll

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—Archbishop Francis J. Spellman said today he hoped Italy would accept peace offers made here, to "provide an opportunity and a challenge to the United Nations to show how they intend to keep faith with the world, with their words and with themselves."

Back from a six-month tour covering Africa, the Mediterranean and the British Isles, and including a visit to the Vatican, Archbishop Spellman read a statement to a general press conference, in which he said:

"Italy's surrender would bring peace to the peace for which the world yearns."

Would Spare Many Lives. "It would spare the lives of American, British and Canadian soldiers, as well as Italian lives and Italian cities. It would spare the lives of many soldiers and civilians of all nations."

Archbishop Spellman, who said he made his 45,000-mile tour by air "at times as a private American citizen and as military vicar of the Catholics in the armed forces of the United States," said his mission was "the mission of America—to make America always stand for good."

He said his visit to Pope Pius XII was for me the happiest and saddest experience of my journey. He was happy "to receive the blessing of the holy father," the archbishop said, and to witness "his sanctity of life and his high purposes," but he added that he was saddened "in the vision of the weight of the cross he carries."

Traveled 45,585 Miles. Archbishop Spellman, who left this country last February, said he had expected to be away for only three months, but although his tour took twice the time he anticipated, he was unable to visit India and China, as he had originally intended.

"In these 24 weeks," he said, "I have traveled 45,585 miles. Not always as the crow flies, because, on one occasion, for example, the British flying boat on which I was a passenger cruised for hours in search of passages of a torpedoes ship."

He said he would have made the trip in the contemplated time, but preferred "to take days to visit military hospitals instead of hours."

Colorado CIO Members Urge Roosevelt 4th Term

By the Associated Press. PUEBLO, Aug. 2.—Delegates to the fifth convention of the Colorado State Industrial Unions (CIO) yesterday unanimously passed a resolution urging President Roosevelt to seek a fourth term. The organization represents about 10,000 members.

Mrs. Mary K. Mansury, 79, who died Sunday at her home of her daughter, Mrs. William J. Hyatt, 3424 Twenty-second street N.E., will be buried tomorrow following a requiem mass at 9 a.m. at St. Francis de Sales Church. Burial will be in St. Mary's Cemetery.
